

Team-Based Learning: a seminar/workshop presentation

Presented by Dr Cate Jerram
Business School
University of Adelaide

Team-Based Learning is a teaching approach that uses student 'teams' to create accelerated active/dynamic learning in lectures, and put an emphasis on student accountability for learning. It changes the lecturer's role from that of the 'Sage on the Stage' who tells the students what the textbook says and what to learn or do, to that of an expert guide available to students as they engage with core concepts in discussion and activities in class, having already done preparatory reading and assignments. This flexible approach can be adopted whole or in part to suit your teaching context.

This seminar/workshop will include:

- an introduction to the principles of TBL, and
- a demonstration of the core practices, method and methodology, including ways to develop effective, interactive learning teams that work with minimal friction and maximum learning.

It will allow you to sample the ways TBL might work for you in the classroom.

Date: Thursday 10 December 2009

Time: 10:00am – 12:00pm

Location: Rm 1.28 (Marjoribanks BANKSA Teaching Suite), NEXUS 10

Tea/coffee and biscuits will be available

Please contact Kerrie Le Lievre at kerrie.lelievre@adelaide.edu.au or on 36923 by 5:00pm on Tuesday 8 December to register.

Sponsored by the Education Research Group of Adelaide.