

Sydney Information Session

The University of Adelaide's Entrepreneurship, Commercialisation and Innovation Centre will be extending the range of programs available through the Sydney Campus in 2009. The introduction of these programs follows the success of the Project Management courses already offered at the Sydney campus.

The ECIC mission is to stimulate Australian innovation through entrepreneurship, commercialisation and project management research, education, and training. It has a core team of experienced staff who have worked in industry, owned and operated their own businesses and who are across contemporary theories, models, and practices.

New programs are being offered in:

- Innovation and Entrepreneurship
- Science and Technology Commercialisation
- Social Entrepreneurship and Innovation
- Project Management: (Climate Change), (Defence), (Mining)

The Academic Directors responsible for each of the following disciplinary areas will be available to chat to you about how their programs can assist you in bringing your ideas into reality.

Innovation and Entrepreneurship: Allan O'Connor MechEng Cert, Grad Dip AirCon, Grad Dip Mgt, MEI, PhD

Science and Technology Commercialisation: Antonio Dottore B.Ec (Hons) MBA (INSEAD)

Project Management: Professor Vernon Ireland BE, BA, MEngSc, PhD FIE Aust, CP Eng

All of the ECIC courses are delivered with the modern professional in mind. Courses are run intensively, typically involving two full days of face-to-face contact, then a break of several weeks for assignments, followed by a further two full days of face-to-face contact. Teaching generally consists of lectures, case study discussions, and discussions surrounding student assigned readings. There are no examinations and assessment is predominantly assignment based, both individual and group work.
