Creating an InCites account

Introduction

InCites is a benchmarking tool which uses Web of Science data to provide information about individual researchers, groups and institutions, comparing them with world averages. You can access InCites with an individual login. InCites is owned by Clarivate Analytics.

Procedure

1. Go to the Library home page at https://www.adelaide.edu.au/library/
2. Select Databases by title & subject

3. Select InCites. Fill out the form Login to Library Services and Login
4. Create an account with InCites
   You need to set up a personal account to access InCites. You will use your University email and a password that you choose. If you have a personal login for any other Clarivate product, such as Web of Science or EndNote Online, you can use this.
