

SciVal: Find a researcher and view key metrics

Introduction

Follow these steps to find a researcher in SciVal. Note: In order for a researcher to appear in SciVal, they must have publications that are indexed in Scopus.

Procedure

- 1. Sign in to SciVal. (Ensure that you have first {created an Elsevier personal account})
- 2. From the welcome page click Go to Overview.
- 3. From the left panel click the Researchers and Groups icon. Click Define a new Researcher: (Note: When you want to find a second researcher you will need to first click Add Researchers and Groups, then click Define a new Researcher.)

- 4. From the Search tab enter the name of the researcher. Note: Use initials rather than a full first name, to check whether the researcher has more than one profile. Click Search. Alternatively, you can click Add another field to include additional search fields such as ORCID, Scopus ID etc.
- 5. When ready, click Search.

- 8. Select Validate publications to view a list of your publications. Remove articles that do not belong to you by unchecking the box next to the publication title.
- 9. If any publications are missing, click Search for missing publications. Follow the steps on the next screen to search for a missing publication by title and then save the changes to complete the process.
- 10. The researcher profile will now appear in the left panel under the Researchers and Groups heading.
- 11. To add the researcher to your Favourites, click the Star icon next to the researcher name:

12. Your profile will now display in Overview with your associated metrics for the timeframe filter selected.

These key metrics display automatically as a dashboard as per the timeframe you have chosen:

- Your scholarly output
- Field Weighted Citation Index (FWCI)
- Citations per publication
- h-index and h5-index

Continue scrolling down the screen to view additional SciVal metrics.

If you would like to alter the default timeframe use the drop-down option. Note htat the timeframe options are fixed in Overview, however in Benchmarking you can customise the timeframe to the exact years required.
