

FACULTY OF THE PROFESSIONS GRADUATE ATTRIBUTES 2007

Master of Applied Economics (Public and Development Policy)

- 1) Knowledge and understanding of the content of economics at advanced levels that are internationally recognised, including specialisation in the fields of public and development economics and policy
- 2) The ability to analyse, evaluate and synthesise information from a wide variety of sources and experiences relevant to these fields
- 3) A growth in critical thinking and problem-solving skills with respect to the fields of public and development economics and policy
- 4) The enhanced capacity to learn and maintain intellectual curiosity and a commitment to continuous learning in these fields
- 5) The significant improvement in their ability to take a leadership role in policy-making processes and a commitment to the highest standards of professional endeavour