Final Year? What's next?

The end of the semester is fast approaching. Congratulations on your upcoming graduation or the completion of your study abroad or exchange program.

Decisions are important at this stage of your journey. Should you consider further study options in Australia or elsewhere; prepare to return home; explore employment opportunities; apply for positions; or apply for permanent residency (PR) after completing your studies at the University of Adelaide?

Further study at the University of Adelaide

If you would like to continue your studies at the University of Adelaide you can apply internally through the International Office. Applications for undergraduate and postgraduate coursework programs are made through an online submission. No supporting documents are required unless otherwise requested. Online applications can be submitted to:

www.international.adelaide.edu.au/enquiries/internal_transfer/

For more information on application closing dates and important deadlines for coursework programs, study abroad and exchange, and postgraduate research programs visit:

www.international.adelaide.edu.au/apply/deadlines

As a continuing student, if you commence a new program next semester you will not need to pay the deposit. Instead, you will continue to receive an invoice each semester on Access Adelaide.

For more information on new program applications for continuing students, you can submit an enquiry on:

www.international.adelaide.edu.au/enquiries

If you plan to take some time off from study in order to work or take a holiday, you will be able to reapply for a new program before you complete your current program. This can be done via the online application form found online.

www.international.adelaide.edu.au/enquiries/internal_transfer/

Academic transcript

It is a good idea to get a copy of your academic transcript before you leave. However, you are advised to wait until your final grades have been posted on Access Adelaide before ordering an academic transcript to ensure that you have a complete listing of your grades.

Academic transcripts must be ordered and paid for online only.

www.adelaide.edu.au/student/graduations/parchment-transcript-ahags/transcripts

Orders can take up to 5 business days to process, and can be collected at the Ask Adelaide Service Area, on Level 3 of Hub Central. Students should provide photo ID. You can also choose to have it posted to you for an additional charge.

Costs:

- > 1 copy is $20
- > Postage is $10 for local postage or $40 for international postage

Outstanding debts

Outstanding debts must be paid to the University before Ask Adelaide can print the transcript(s) for you. If not, a Negative Service Indicator will appear on your student record and will limit the services available to you until the debt is paid.

Course results

Students' final course results will be available online via Access Adelaide. To check when the results will be available or to check when a Replacement / Additional Assessment (R/AA) results (known as supplementary exams) refer to the link below.

If your result is not available when you log in, contact your School or Faculty for advice. Please note University staff members are not permitted to release results over the telephone.

www.adelaide.edu.au/student/exams/results.html

Grading system – what do the letters in my results mean?

Keep course descriptions

It is suggested that before you go home you print the relevant course descriptions from the course profile. Keep these with your Academic Transcript, as they may be helpful for job applications or for future credit transfer if you wish to do further studies in other universities anywhere in the world.

For further information on how to find course descriptions visit:

www.adelaide.edu.au/course-outlines/

You may also simply print or save your current Course Outlines from Access Adelaide.

Graduation

Congratulations! The fact that you are reading this indicates you have already completed your studies or expect to complete them in the very near future.

All student records will be checked once examination results become available and eligible students will have a statement added to their transcripts confirming that they have completed their awards. The Graduations Office will contact all students who indicate that they expect to complete their program at the end of semester via Access Adelaide with information about the graduation process, ceremony dates, and parchment collection procedures.

For onshore and offshore graduation ceremony dates see:

www.adelaide.edu.au/student/graduations/ceremonydates/

For important deadlines for students visit:

www.adelaide.edu.au/student/graduations/deadlines

How do I graduate?

Graduating from the University of Adelaide is an easy process. First, you'll need to be conferred, and then you can receive your parchment.

Conferral means that you have completed all requirements for your award and are eligible to become a legal graduate of the University. An award (i.e. your degree) can then be bestowed.

The University of Adelaide confers students three times a year. Once you have met all of the requirements of your award, you must be conferred. Please follow the steps below to apply for conferral:

Step 1 – Respond to your automatic application or submit a manual application

Step 2 – Make sure personal details are correct

Step 3 – Check your eligibility

Step 4 – Choose how to receive your parchment

For more information see the Graduations page on the University website:

www.adelaide.edu.au/student/graduations/students/howtograduate/

Extending your stay

Only the Department of Immigration and Border Protection (DIBP) and registered migration agents are licensed to give advice about immigration matters. It is important that you read through the DIBP website thoroughly. Please note that there is no requirement for you to use a migration agent, and your application will not be treated any differently if you 'do' or 'do not'.

Frequently asked questions (FAQ)

Can I stay in Australia after my studies have been completed?

You may apply to remain in Australia for a short period of time on a Visitor visa for the purpose of attending your graduation ceremony or to holiday (if the time needed is not covered by your current student visa). If you wish to stay longer, you will need to explore other visa options.

When should I apply for further study?

Always apply for further study before your current visa expires. If you are continuing studies, after you have accepted an offer of a place, and received a new Confirmation of Enrolment (CoE), you must apply for a new Student visa. See:

www.border.gov.au/Trav/Stud

Can I stay for a holiday or graduation after my visa expires?

If your current Student visa is about to expire and you wish to have a holiday in Australia or to attend your graduation ceremony, you may wish to apply for a Visitor visa. You will need to provide DIBP with a copy of your academic transcripts showing that you have completed your course. Consequently, you cannot do this until exam results are released and a degree check has been performed by your School or Faculty. For more information see DIBP's website:

www.border.gov.au/Trav/Visi/Visi

www.border.gov.au/allforms

What do I do if I have been offered employment?

If you have received an offer of employment by an Australia employer able to sponsor you, you may be eligible to apply for an Employer Sponsored visa:

www.border.gov.au/Trav/Work/Work

Am I eligible for General Skilled migration?

You might be. If you have completed one or more Australian degrees which required at least two years of full-time study, you may be eligible to apply for a skilled visa in Australia. Find out more information at:

www.border.gov.au/Trav/Work/Skil

What is a Skilled – Graduate (Temporary) visa (subclass 485)?

The visa allows overseas students who do not meet the criteria for a permanent General Skilled Migration visa to remain in Australia for 18 months to gain skilled work experience or improve their English language skills:

www.border.gov.au/Trav/Visa-1/485-

Who do I contact for more information?

You may contact your nearest DIBP office by ringing 131 881 for the cost of a local call, or by visiting the website: www.border.gov.au or you can make direct contact by visiting their office at 70 Franklin Street, Adelaide.

Going home

Moving can be a daunting and tiring process, but preparation and knowing what needs to be done will make it much easier. The process of moving out will vary depending on the type of lease agreement or contract you have. You might be leaving a share house or vacating an entire property, leaving a room in student housing or at a college. All will have some obligations and things to do before your leave.

Selling unwanted items/text books

- > Use the on-campus notice boards to advertise your goods.
- > Use the classified section on MyUni or the AUU marketplace.

> Set up a garage sale on the weekend

Several friends may want to get together and have a garage sale. It is worth advertising garage sales, and the local newspapers are good places to advertise. Be prepared for people to phone or come by from very early in the morning, and second hand shop owners often are the earliest customers. Be prepared to bargain. Be security conscious and have a friend there with you. Hold garage sales outside under cover. Do not let strangers into your home. Try not to leave your goods unattended.

> Donate your goods

Most charities will also accept donations of clothing, electrical goods, furniture, and other household items from the kitchen should you decide not to take them with you when you leave the country. Just remember, the items need to be in good condition.

Alternatively, you may wish to pay to advertise in The Trading Post, The Messenger, or The Advertiser, especially if you're selling a vehicle or any other expensive items.

- > If you can replace an item cheaply at home, then sell it NOW! If you have things worth selling put a sign up on notice boards around the University stating the price you want for each item. REMEMBER not to leave it to the last minute. If you own pots and pans, kitchenware or cleaning equipment, get rid of them, sell them or give them to a friend as an early Christmas present.

Packing and shipping

The method of transport you choose to use to send your things home will probably depend on the value, size and weight of the items and how soon you need them once you get home. Consider sorting through your things NOW, and separating them into things you will need between now and when you leave and things you can start to send home now. This will give you a better idea of how much you have to take home and when you will need to post or ship it.

There are several ways of sending your belongings home:

- > Sea / Air Cargo are usually used for container size or other large shipments.
- > Australia Post is good for light and small objects.
- > Excess luggage is again good for those last minute purchases or light objects.
- > Unaccompanied baggage is often seen as the most convenient and cost effective. There are two main types of service – the airline you are flying with and an unaccompanied baggage service.
- > If you are going to use the same airline, arrangements must be made with the airline on your ticket prior to your departure. (This is often expensive).

How do I pack my things?

- > Your baggage is travelling a long way, so pack accordingly! Remember these are your valuable possessions that you may not be able to replace.
- > Use suitcases or good quality strong boxes or cartons – do not overload them. Supermarket boxes are usually lightweight boxes for groceries, so be very selective and use only strong boxes. It is advisable not to use polystyrene boxes or the red and white striped bags.
- > If you are using second hand boxes, ensure that old names and details are erased.
- > Use good quality packing tape and packing material. Pack delicate things in the centre and surround with clothes or newspapers.
- > Computers and hi-fi equipment should be packed in their original box. If you do not have the box any more, go back to the computer or hi-fi shop and they can probably help.
- > Make a list and take photographs. It is wise to make a list of what you have sent as unaccompanied baggage. Make a copy for the company you use and one for yourself. Take photographs as proof of the current condition of your items in case baggage is lost or damaged. You may need to show these to an insurance company if you have organised insurance.

Baggage agents

For a list of baggage agents, visit the Yellow Pages directory online and search under Baggage Agents, Air Cargo Services and Shipping Companies. It is advisable for you to get at least 3 quotes for freighting/shipping your possessions home, as businesses are very competitive and prices vary.

Financial matters

Close your bank accounts

It is important to close your bank accounts before you leave to avoid bank fees and charges. If you expect any transactions after you have left Australia (eg. Final payment of wages), discuss your circumstances with your bank.

Do not take out a large amount of cash.

Claiming superannuation payments

If you have accumulated any superannuation whilst working in Australia, you may be eligible to access your superannuation (subject to withholding tax) when you permanently leave Australia. You will need to complete an 'Application for Departing Australia superannuation payment (DASP)' form for temporary residents, which is available at:

www.ato.gov.au/Forms/Applying-for-a-Departing-Australia-super-payment/

This form may be completed if you are an eligible temporary resident who is requesting a payment of your superannuation benefits from your superannuation fund.

Alternatively, you may complete an equivalent form available from your superannuation fund. If you are still in Australia, please call the Superannuation Info line for further information on 13 10 20. If you have left Australia, you can email

DASPmail@ato.gov.au

Leaving Australia – lodging your tax return

The Australian Tax Office (ATO) policy may accept early lodgement of returns for individuals before the end of the financial year in certain circumstances. These are the circumstances:

International students here for less than six months

You are considered a non-resident of Australia for tax purposes and can lodge an early return if:

- > You are leaving Australia permanently, and
- > You will no longer derive Australian sourced income (excluding interest, dividend, and royalty income).

International students here for longer than six months

You are considered a resident of Australia for tax purposes and can lodge an early return if:

- > You are leaving Australia, and
- > Are ceasing to be a resident of Australia for tax purposes, and
- > You will no longer derive Australian sourced income (excluding interest, dividend, and royalty income).

If you are unsure whether or not you will continue to be a resident of Australia for tax purposes, read 'Are you a resident?' at:

www.ato.gov.au/Calculators-and-tools/Are-you-a-resident/

If you are not leaving Australia permanently, or will receive Australian sourced income (other than interest, dividends, and royalties) after leaving Australia, you should lodge your return during the normal lodgement period (1 July to 31 October).

How to lodge an early tax return

If you meet the requirements outlined above, you will need to:

- > obtain a copy of the current TaxPack and claim form
- > contact the Australian Taxation Office to discuss your situation

- > Collect a payment summary from each of your employers and details of other income you have earned in Australia.
- > Complete your tax return

Overseas Student Health Cover (OSHC) refund

If you have been studying in Australia on a student visa, you will have had Overseas Student Health Cover (OSHC) and may be entitled to a refund for any outstanding cover. For example, you may have 4 months of cover left on your policy, which you will not use after you leave Australia, so you can claim it back. See your health cover provider for details. For refund forms for the health cover provider Allianz Global Insurance, see the Allianz representative in the Hub Central. You will need to provide evidence of the day you plan to leave Australia (eg. an air ticket), and details of an overseas bank account. Allianz Global Assistance's refund form is also available online at:

Arriving home

Why should I be anxious about going home? It's not a foreign country.

You expect to have some difficulty when you go to a new place, speak a different language, and learn the rules of a different culture. But why be anxious about going home?

Be aware of the changes in yourself.

You will have changed significantly. Your values and interests, your thought processes, and even your political and religious beliefs may have changed. You will not return home unchanged. Whether you like the changes or not makes little difference, they will have occurred and you need to be aware of them. It is easy to assume that because you are returning home, you will know what to expect and how to behave, and that you will be happy in your own environment again. Students often discover that things at home have also changed, particularly if a few years have passed.

Students, business people, and others who have lived in another country for a year or more often find that returning home is more difficult than adjusting to a foreign culture. Many go through a period of feeling unsettled before their confidence returns.

Research has shown that preparation can help reduce the disorientation and shock of returning home. As when you arrived in Australia, you may experience 'culture shock' when returning home. There appear to be four distinctive patterns or phases:

- > The excitement of returning
- > Re-establishment and frustration
- > Gaining a sense of control
- > Re-adaption

Unique aspects of the re-entry experience for international students

When you came to South Australia as a student you may have expected to be an 'outsider' or in the minority. On returning home you may expect to feel at home, at ease, and a part of the 'in-group'. However, students returning home often find the environment less familiar than they expected.

Exposure to different ways of living will have influenced your expectations about returning home. For example, while in Australia you may have experienced new opportunities in the areas of relationships, personal freedom, employment, and career prospects. On returning home you will once again be required to adapt, and you may not be aware of the changes in yourself – how you think and what you believe. It is useful to be aware of these changes and think about the nature of the changes before returning home.

Issues international students may encounter on their return

Coming home is also a period of integration; you need to integrate what you have learned abroad into your life back home. There are many areas in which you may experience difficulty readjusting. Listed on the next page are some of those areas and some suggested strategies for how to work through these issues.

1. Family

You may be expected to fit back into your family but find it difficult to communicate effectively because your family has not shared your experiences in Australia. Your family may have difficulty adjusting to your newfound independence or changed values.

Strategies:

Share your experience with your family (photo, new Facebook friends, stories, etc.) and let them know how much you appreciate their support for your studies and personal growth.

Past student feedback:

Face the fact that you are different for your experience. I tried to just fit back in and it was really hard. After a while I thought about it and changed my behaviour and it was a lot easier to settle in.

Try to think about what you would like in your relationships with others. This may have changed from your experience. When you get back, say no to things you do not like doing and avoid your old habits and patterns.

2. Friends

You and your old friends may no longer be as close as you once were. You will need to be sensitive about discussing your experience with them. You may also miss the friends you have made in Australia.

Strategies:

Ask about and listen to what your friends have experienced while you were away. Ask to be brought up to date on local events. Try and do new things together to restart the relationship on a new footing. Keep in touch with your Adelaide friends, too (through Facebook, emails, etc.)!

Past student feedback:

Hold back - tell everything at once and people avoid you. Take your time to communicate with friends and family. It takes some time for them to take it all in, as well as for you to digest all the things you have encountered there, and to complete your transition to life back home.

3. Country

It is possible that at first your home culture may no longer be entirely to your liking and you may have the sense that you no longer fit in. In the future you will probably continue to evaluate ideas and events in the context of the broader cultural perspective you have acquired while in Adelaide.

Strategies:

Come to terms with the fact that we all tend to look past the shortcomings of our home culture when we are away, and to criticise it on the basis of changed perspective when we return. Make friends with an interest in international or intercultural affairs.

Keep up with news from Australia and Adelaide through reading online news media. For example:

www.adelaidenow.com.au

www.abc.net.au

www.sbs.com.au/news/national

Past student feedback:

“ I found it a strange experience when I got home for good. I had been home for holidays and I looked at everything about my country and culture really positive. When I realised I was back for good I thought about things really deeply, it was unsettling for me. It took a while to balance the good with the bad. It was great to talk with some Alumni about things. I realised I was more aware and wanted to make things better and this is a good thing. ”

4. Self

You have been on your own having to deal with your academic program, living in a new country, and the resulting high level of activity and anticipation this has created. You may feel restless or a bit depressed for a while after you return.

Strategies:

Recuperate from the physical journey. Think about the ways you have changed: what did you learn about yourself? How have your family and friends reacted to these changes? Keep a journal so that you can see how your thoughts evolve over time. Talk with other returning students who may feel the same way.

Past student feedback:

“ After a short time it was all getting really hard. I found it harder to get a job than I thought it would be and was even thinking of moving overseas. ”

After doing some self-reflection, I could talk about my experience in Adelaide in a really positive way. Sounds strange but I knew what I knew.

I started to just enjoy the time a bit and was feeling happier and healthier – that’s when I got a job. You need to be patient and look after yourself. When you are really stressed out it shows when you talk with people about work. Relax. ”

Q. Do you remember anything else you would like to write about some of your first experiences and impressions?

The most important points to remember are your own strengths and achievements. You have lived in another country. You have had happy and sad times, difficult and easy times. You have faced many challenges and have become stronger as a result. You have succeeded in achieving your goal.

Our reason for reminding you of these events is to give you an opportunity to think about how you may feel on your return home. It is more than likely that around this time your emotions will begin to fluctuate between excitement and perhaps sadness. The enjoyment of sharing photos and stories with your family, having a home cooked meal, and catching up with friends is definitely something to look forward to. There will also be fears or challenges you may have when readjusting to your home environment or culture.

Note the changes in emotional highs and lows you have experienced since studying abroad. There are many similarities between your experiences since arriving in Australia and what you may experience on your return home. By thinking about these things you will be better prepared for your return home and your adjustment may be easier.

Bon voyage* and keep in touch!

We encourage you to stay in contact with your fellow classmates, your teachers, and the University community, through the Alumni program. University Engagement is your direct and continuing contact with the University, your friends, and your colleagues after you graduate.

You are part of a large and rapidly growing number of alumni who live throughout the world. As an alumnus of the University of Adelaide you are a member of a vibrant community, full of social, professional, and networking opportunities available through Adelaide onLION, your area of study, and our Alumni Networks. You may be far from campus, but the Adelaide alumni network stretches across the globe.

Benefits of involvement with your Alumni

- > Ongoing contact with your University through alumni events.
- > Establishing a personal support network through a network of interest.
- > Advice on securing employment.
- > Enhance the profile of your University overseas.
- > Mentoring opportunities – many Alumni network members are prominent business people and experts in their particular field.
- > Network events provide information, networking, and mentoring opportunities for you to learn from those already established in a field.
- > Involvement in a volunteer organisation such as an overseas alumni network is a positive addition to your CV.
