Arm yourself with the knowledge to minimise legal risk

Managers and professionals in business make decisions of a legal nature every day, yet do not always understand or have access to current knowledge in Business Law.

They are constantly required to enter into formal and informal agreements and transactions in a wide range of business situations, with legal implications, such as fines and penalties, for both their organisation and themselves. Indeed, there is an increasing trend in the law to make managers personally liable for breaches of the law by their organisation.

To lead responsibly then, modern managers must not only be aware of the importance of minimising legal risk, but make it a normal and high-priority part of their approach to their duties. This program will help you do it.

All critical areas of law covered

By enhancing your knowledge of your key responsibilities and potential liabilities in the area of Business Law, this program will help you identify and avoid looming problems before they eventuate.

In addition to receiving a comprehensive overview of the legal system and risk minimisation, you will examine a number of critical legal areas relevant to all organisations, including:

- Legal compliance programs.
- Alternative Dispute Resolution.
- Contract Law.
- Consumer Protection Law.
- Competition and Restrictive Trade Practices Law.
- Employment Law.
- Intellectual Property at work.

In each topic, emphasis will be placed on identifying the legal duties that apply to you as a manager and the legal consequences that may follow your actions.

Thought-provoking, interactive learning

This hands-on program offers a stimulating learning experience, imparting valuable skills and knowledge with immediate application.
