Call for Papers

The theme for AustraLex 2017 is 'Intersections between oral narratives, traditions, lexicography and new media'. Papers may address a wide range of areas associated with lexicography, including, but not limited to: contact linguistics; culture and identity; e-lexicography; endangered languages; learners' dictionaries; lexicology; music and language; onomastics; oral traditions and language; phraseology; paremiology; Revival Linguistics; social empowerment through language; specialist dictionaries; and terminology.

If you would like to submit a paper or a poster, please upload an abstract of no more than 300 words in a Word document to <http://linguistlist.org/easyabs/AustraLex2017> by 31 December 2016. Abstracts may include up to 5 references, but references are not compulsory. The reference list at the end of the abstract will not be included in the word count. Final notification of acceptance will be sent out by 31 March 2017, but early submissions will be reviewed more quickly and authors will be notified as soon as possible. Please name your file: Family name_Title.

Student bursaries

Up to two student bursaries are available to assist students from Australia and New Zealand to attend the conference and present a paper. Applicants must be full-time students in an Honours degree or a higher degree research program. Each applicant must supply a 2 page prospectus of their intended presentation (including results) along with the standard 300-word abstract. A cover note from their supervisor/head of school must be included with each application. Please contact the Secretary for further details.

We look forward to welcoming you to AustraLex 2017 on the island of Rarotonga in the beautiful Cook Islands.
