HDA Translational Research Seminar

‘Ethics in Research’

A/Prof Annette Braunack-Mayer
Discipline of Public Health, University of Adelaide

Thursday 6 April, 3.30-5.00pm
University of Adelaide Staff Club – Hoods Room

A/Prof Braunack-Mayer is an ethicist with research interests revolving around the intersection of ethics, qualitative research methods and social analysis in health care, and particularly concerning public health and health technology assessment. Current projects concern community engagement in decisions about new technologies in health care and ethical issues in the publication of research findings. A/Prof Braunack-Mayer also teaches ethics and qualitative research methods to medical and health science undergraduates and public health postgraduates, and supervises postgraduate research that draws on ethical and qualitative methodologies. A/Prof Braunack-Mayer has played a key role in the establishment of the Ethics Centre of South Australia and is currently the Research Ethics Theme leader for ECSA.
