Whistleblowers Protection Act 1993
(South Australian)
What is a whistleblower?

- A whistleblower is a person who exposes wrongdoing within an organisation, in the hope of stopping it & preventing it from reoccurring.

- The term whistleblower originates from the practice of English bobbies (policemen), who would blow their whistles to alert police officers & the general public of danger or a crime.

- “To blow the whistle” now means to reveal information about a person or organisation that has:
  - risked public health, safety or the environment
  - acted illegally
  - wasted public money
  - misused public resources
  - falsified records

- Most whistleblowers are internal whistleblowers who report misconduct to a fellow employee or manager within their company.
What does the Whistleblower’s Protection Act do?

- Makes it unlawful to treat people unfairly because they have seen fit to blow the whistle

- Facilitates the disclosure of significant information relating to illegal, hazardous or improper conduct that would not otherwise be publicly available

- Provides protection for whistleblowers;
  - against victimisation or harassment
  - from civil or criminal liability
How does the Act affect the University?

- The University adopts policies & practices that protect the identity of internal & external whistleblowers;
  - employees of the University
  - members of the public who make the disclosure about matters relating to the University

- The University adopts the general provisions of the Act in its Whistleblower Policy

- The University encourages whistle-blowing wherever there is suspected unacceptable behaviour & if it is in the public interest to do so

- The University recognises that whistleblowing can assist with:
  - improved governance & administrative practice
  - fraud & corruption prevention
    * See University of Adelaide Fraud and Corruption Control Policy
Whistleblowers Protection Act 1993 (SA)

Disclosure of Information

Whistleblower protection from liability is available under certain conditions:

- The person must reasonably believe that the information is true or may be true
  - The Act does not protect people who make false claims

- The information must meet the definition of public interest information;
  - Illegal activity;
  - Unauthorised use of public money;
  - Substantial mismanagement of public resources; or
  - Substantial risk to public health, safety or environment

- The information must be disclosed to an appropriate authority such as;
  - An Authorised Disclosure Officer (ADO) of the University (see below)
  - Police
  - The State Ombudsman

- A person who discloses public interest information must assist with any investigation of the matters to which the information relates
Whistleblowers Protection Act 1993 (SA)

Report to an “Authorised Disclosure Officer”

Authorised Disclosure Officers are:
- Whistleblower Protection Officer, Prof John Williams, Dean of Law
- Chief Operating Officer, Mr Bruce Lines
- An Executive Dean in any Faculty of the University

Are you happy to provide your contact details to the ADO?
- Yes → Contact an ADO directly to report

An independent Whistleblower Investigation Officer (WIO) will be appointed to assess the report and conduct an investigation

ADO will be advised of findings of the investigation and will ensure that appropriate action is undertaken

Outcomes
- ADO will provide you with information

Support
- Do you require additional support, such as counselling?
- Yes → An ADO can arrange this for you

Protection
- Has your confidentiality been breached or have you been victimised?
- Yes → Make a report to the Whistleblower Protection Officer* (WPO)

A separate investigation will be conducted by an experienced senior person (outside of the area)

Appropriate action will be taken to ensure your protection

ADO may report to an Authority if appropriate, such as SAPOL or OPI
Tips on reporting

• Direct disclosure of information to one of the University’s Authorised Disclosure Officers is preferable, as meetings will be conducted in person & in private.

• Reporting via email can be a useful way of organising the facts of the matter before discussing them in person & may be less daunting than in person.

• If reporting over the phone, ensure your conversation will be confidential & that you have sufficient time to fully discuss the situation with an Authorised Disclosure Officer.

• If possible, avoid anonymous letters or reports;
  – they are difficult to act on & don’t usually provide sufficient or specific enough information to start an investigation.

• It is always best for all concerned to deal with a complaint openly & fairly.
The Act prohibits victimisation of a whistleblower

- Victimisation is the unfair treating of another person for complaining or helping others to complain

- Victimisation might include:
  - actual injury, damage or loss
  - intimidation or harassment
  - discrimination, disadvantage or adverse treatment in relation to a person's employment
  - threats of reprisal from colleagues or management

- A whistleblower who is victimised can take legal action in the courts or can lodge a complaint with the Commissioner for Equal Opportunity
What can happen if I don’t comply?

- Victimisation as a result of whistleblowing is actionable as if it were an act under the Equal Opportunity Act 1984

- Compensatory payments or damages may be awarded under the Equal Opportunity Act as well as penalties brought under the Whistleblower Protection Act;

  - for economic loss (eg: Loss of wages)
  - for injury to feelings (up to $5,000)
Whistleblowers Protection Act 1993 (SA)

What can happen if I don’t comply? (cont.)
