Copyright Compliance within the University

Overview

The course provides an overview of copyright compliance within the University setting (teaching and research) and outlines what licences and exemptions can be relied on for University purposes, and tips and traps for copyright compliance in the digital environment.

The course assumes a basic understanding of copyright, which can be obtained from the University’s copyright website (www.adelaide.edu.au/copyright) or the Copyright Induction for Staff online course available to all staff on MyUni.

Learning Outcomes

An understanding of:

- your copyright compliance responsibilities as staff of the University
- University-wide licences that can be relied upon when reproducing / communicating material for educational purposes
- the obligations under those licences
- other statutory exemptions that can be relied upon for teaching and research
- copyright considerations when using material from the Internet or posting teaching material to the Internet